

Endura Windchill

£26

The attention to detail and multi-panel construction belies their relatively low cost. While the fabric used on the uppers does a good job of deflecting wind-chill, there's not much additional insulation to cover the back of your hand. This will suit warm-blooded riders better than those who suffer with the cold, although both will appreciate the enhanced breathability and dexterity. Strangely, the palms have more insulation than the uppers, along with some additional gel padding. Unless you're sold on finding a glove with an unadorned palm, we'd happily recommend these. endurasport.com
