

Endura Windchill

£28

The Windchill is an extremely well-specified glove for the money and keeps your hands surprisingly warm for such a sleek shape. The back of the hand is made from wind and waterproof fabric, while the microfibre palm features strategically placed gel inserts at pressure points – a welcome addition to cold-weather gloves, which are often padding-free. The long wrist has a stretch cuff that does away with the need for any fiddly closure but is close-fitting enough to keep the warmth in yet still be easy to take on and off. To round it all out there's a generous towelling snout wipe for comfortably soaking up the inevitable cold weather riding nose drip.

Excellent combination of spec and weather protection.
