

Endura FS200 Pro Nemo

£27.99

What these gloves lack in high-tech breathability, they make up for in warmth and durability. Made from the same neoprene material as wetsuits, they'll keep you toasty even when wet by trapping any water against the skin, where your body can get to work heating it up. Unfortunately, the trade-off is clammy, sweaty hands. Even worse, it's also almost impossible to stop them smelling after a few rides. That said, nothing else on test here will keep you as warm while remaining so thin. Still a popular choice among the peloton on cold, rainy days, this style of glove works well if you're happy to accept the trade-offs. These particular models are an excellent fit, and feature welded seams, reflective trim and grippy bobbles across the entire palm. endurasport.com
