

Endura Neoprene FS260-Pro Nemo gloves

£28

Whatever the claims of manufacturers we've never found a truly waterproof glove. These superb Endura 'wetsuit style' Neoprene gloves actually harness wetness as a weapon against cold. That means you might feel chilly at first but while other gloves gradually wet out and freeze the Nemos will keep your digits genuinely roasting hot.

Unlike other Neoprene gloves we've tried, a clever cut and just the right thickness of material means they don't crush your hands into arm pumping agony. They're durable with silicon patterns on the palm for control even on sodden, muddy grips, and they were ace for making snowballs with. The downside is that your hands will look like a dead fisherman and smell pretty funky too, but we'll take that over frostbite every time.
