

Endura FS260-Pro SL. £99.99

Scottish brand Endura has been quietly producing top-quality cycling clothing since 1992. More recently it has received a lot of coverage with the success of its supported Movistar team at this year's Tour de France.

Endura has worked hard to ensure everyone can enjoy the best fit for the FS260, with a choice of three different pad widths per size. The insert was comfortable with ample padding where it is needed.

Even after several hours of riding the legs remained in place due to the quality grippers and wide cuffs. The length of the leg is fine, but longer leg options are available if you prefer. The combination of breathable braces and multiple leg panels further enhanced the enjoyment of my rides using the FS260s.

Endura is so confident you'll love this garment it is offering a refund or exchange within 90 days if they are not the best bibshorts you've ever worn. Bold words, but I'll admit that the FS260-Pro SL are definitely up there with the best bibs I've tested.
