

WE SAY
Windproof panels,
water-resistant,
breathable and stretchy
- is this the ideal
spring jersey?

ENDURA

Scottish-developed kit

Endura was founded in Scotland in 1993 with a no-nonsense commitment to advancing the performance and function of cycle apparel for all. The maverick brand continues to build on its innovation and is now at the cutting edge, developing kit with Team Movistar as well as the humble commuter.

ENDURA FS260-PRO JETSTREAM & FS260-PRO SL ARM WARMERS

★★★★★ £79.99/£39.99

CYCLING
PLUS
BEST
ON TEST

Weight 140g (S)/55g (S) Sizes S, M, L, XL,
XXL & S, M, L, XL Colour Black

The Jetstream, thanks to its sublimated windproof front and arm panels, is equipped to deal with variable conditions. Staying dry in a shower wasn't a problem either, thanks to its DWR treatment. The Jetstream also wicks well because of the rear's breathable and stretchy fabric, which provides a great fit. We also appreciated the long tail, fitted sleeves, full-length zip and three well-positioned pockets. But in spite of all these features it still feels like a thinner jersey. The Pro SL arm warmers also have DWR, making a great combination for riding and racing.

ENDURA FS 260-PRO BIB & PRO SL KNEE WARMERS

★★★★★ £84/£32.99

Weight 195g/85g(S) (S) Sizes XS, S, M, L,
XL, XXL & S, M, L, XL
Colour Black, red, white

From the moment we put on the FS260 Pro bibs we were impressed. They deliver a classy race cut, their well-executed quality Italian Lycra panels feel luxurious, the wide mesh upper bibs are comfortable. And Endura's pre-curved multi-density pad, with gel inserts, felt great no matter how many miles we notched up. Their red raw-edge hems, with silicone grippers, not only look good but hold the shorts in place comfortably. The shorts combine with Endura's water-repellant Pro-SL Thermolite knee warmers for a dynamic duo and a winning spring setup.