Endura Pakagilet

£33

Packing down to the size of a mini Coke can, the Pakagilet takes up minimal space in your jersey pocket – it came out top in our packability test despite some stiff competition in this respect. Stiff storm flaps in front of and behind the zip help prevent wind and water finding its way through. A high collar and elasticated trim on all the apertures further seal out the wind. The fabric itself is moderately water resistant – probably as much as you really need in this type of garment. Breathability is respectable too, although a large mesh panel on the rear means you're unlikely to overheat anyway. A gap between this section and the extended bum flap (which is replete with reflective detailing) allows easy access to your jersey pockets. Available in a range of colours – black, white, red and hi-vis yellow – it even comes with its own neat stuff sack.
