

Endura MTR Shell £119.99

Firstly, we really like that this jacket's navy blue, instead of the customary black. We also favour its minimal design – for which, read no pockets. The shape is slim but the jacket moves with you, thanks to the cut of the shoulders and strategically placed stretch inserts. It's a combination that makes you feel like you're riding faster just by wearing it. The MTR Shell has all the features you need and none you don't – the collar is soft-lined, the hood adjustable and removable, with elastic to keep it snugly in place, and there are silicone wear/grip patches on the shoulders plus a dropped tail with a gripper, to keep you covered. The MTR Shell travels fast and light but feels substantial enough not to just be an emergency go-to jacket and, what's more, it also comes in at an affordable price.
